Thousands of Persons Join In Remarkable Testimonial To U. S. Senator W. E. Crow

pouring of Citizens for Reception. Unprecedented in County History.

NATOR MUCH AFFECTED

Testimonial Accorded Him When He Took Seat in Senate Not to Be Forgotten With That of Home Folks
Every Week of Life, Every Age.

In the previous history of Fayette county has no remarkable testimonial been tendered one of its native sons as was given by the informal reception to United States Senator William E. Crow in the courthouse in Connellsville on Saturday evening. In the hundreds paying their respect to the senator, the county is a class of people represented, it only took rank as the most memorable occasion of its kind in the reception of any living resident of the county.

For an hour and a half a steady stream of people, walking breast to breast in single file, entered the main room of the courthouse, passed the judge's bench, and the receiving line to his right then through No. 3 courtroom into the corridor and out the building. Many took seats in the courtroom and watched the senator as he came through the line for a while.

As each person approached the senator he grasped his hand in warm cordial greeting, expressing by a word and a face wreathed in a happy smile the pleasure he was experiencing. In the line there were men, women and children and babies in arms. Mothers, fathers, grandmothers, ministers, physicians, bankers, merchants, mechanics, clerks, students, teachers, laborers and persons of every occupation. There was no distinction as to age, color, or place of birth, the tribute of respect offered the rich and the poor alike being affectionate regard and received with the same sincerity of a man proudly grateful for the honor being tendered upon him.

As the demonstration reached Senator Crow when he took seat in the Senate chamber at Washington a week ago, the reception Saturday evening touched him deeply. It was an outpouring of the "home folks," those whom he knew from boyhood, his neighbors and intimate friends and even those who at times in his career had been bitter opponents in political contests. But all differences and rivalries had been forgotten in the joy of the occasion.

FORD DOING JEWS A GREAT FAVOR BY HIS PROPAGANDA

Said Rev. Scott in His Sermon At the U. P. Church Last Night.

NOT ATTACK ON THE RACE

On the Jewish Religion But on the "International Jew" Who Knows no Country, Has Cast Off God and Now Plans Overthrow of Governments.

In a sermon on "Henry Ford and the Jew" delivered by Rev. James J. Scott in the United Presbyterian church last evening, the speaker maintained that the propaganda being conducted by the Dearborn Independent Ford's newspaper, has been helpful instead of harmful to the Jew. It is Rev. Scott's impression that the campaign is not being directed against the Jewish race or religion, or against the Jew as a citizen, but against the "International Jew," who has forgotten the God of his fathers, and disregards the motives inspiring the tradition of old, and who has become atheistic and anarchistic and the leader in movements to overthrow all law and government.

To the extent that Jews have been aroused to the mena which has developed from the activities of International Jew, individually and collectively as an enemy of their own and all other races, Rev. Scott is of the opinion that all thoughtful Jews have come to realize the necessity of pulling back to the precepts and principles of the fundamental Moslem laws. In this respect he holds that the Ford propaganda "has done the Jewish people a great favor."

"There is," said Rev. Scott, "a great change of relationship between the whole Christian church and the Jew because of the debt of the church to the Jews in having preserved and handed down the history and traditions upon which the church has been established. There should be no antagonism between the church and the Jewish people nor between the Jews and the church."

The problem of the Jew is the problem of the world and has grown out of the historic fact that the Jew has always been in countries where he was not wanted. The only lands where he has been given friendly treatment have been the Egyptian, and countries of the United States and Great Britain. Even here the Jew is a problem and at present he is the center of a problem, several agitations having been started as the result of the attempted exploitations by the International Jew.

This agitation is not against the religion of the Jewish people, or against them as a race. It is against the Jew that knows no nation, who has cast aside the law of Moses and who no longer believes in God. He is running loose over this and other countries, hence a positive danger to civilization and all people.

The attack Ford is making on the International Jew, as I understand it, is not to discredit the Jewish people. It is directed against an enemy of their own race which is also the enemy of all race of God and man. This creates a problem for the Jews as well as for Gentiles to consider.

As a result of these articles the Jews are now raising a fund of $100,000 to be employed in circulating all the Jews of the world in an effort to bring them back to Old Testament teachings and cause the indifferent among them to give closer regard to the warnings of their ancient prophets. I hope this movement will succeed. To bring Jew to a realization of their opportunity to fulfill prophecy and that through them all nations of the earth will be blessed. I do not think the International Jew may be permitted to exploit nations as he has done in Russia. It will be a magnificent achievement, worthy of the great things Jews have contributed to the advancement of the human race.

If the Jew can be brought to stand firmly on the Old Testament he may presently find himself coming over to the New as the New is daily inspired word of God.

Rev. Scott regretted the attempt to stop the publication or sale of Ford's paper as futile. "The more effort put forth to prevent either the greater will be the desire of the public to see what is saying about the Jew."

Ford having been hoodwinked by a lot of revolutionary doctrinaires in organizing and financing his Race Ship to Europe during the war was believed by the speaker to be the motive prompting the exposure of the activities and designs of the International Jew. To that purpose he began the publication of the Dearborn Independent.

THOUSANDS OF PERSONS JOINED IN TESTIMONIAL TO SENATOR W. E. CROW

The evening whose name and the date of his induction in the Senate were put out in bold relief. On blank spaces on the memorial were inscribed the names of quite a number of friends of the senator.

Arrangements for the reception and testimonial proved well made. There was no congestion, everyone was given an opportunity to meet and greet the senator. Five members of the state constabulary, in charge of Sergeant Freeman and Hudson, were on duty at the door and lower corridor of the courthouse in directing the friends of the senator. Court officers, in uniform, were upstairs to direct the long lines of visitors. County Detective John J. Russell assisted in the large courtroom.

The ease with which the crowd was handled in the courtroom was the result of the skilled supervision of Court Clerk Charles M. Fox.

The members of the reception committee were Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen, chairman; Judge J. H. Reppert, Judge J. C. Work, Earl Sturten, chairman of the Republican county committee; J. B. Adams, president of the Fayette County Bar Association; Dr. S. A. Bantz, commander of the American Legion; Dr. L. F. MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 31, 1921.

OPENING OF THE GAME SEASON.

The opening of the small game season tomorrow will put the sportsman-ship of a lot of people to the test. Never in any previous year have so many hunters' licenses been issued never before will there be so many opportunities for the hunters to get into the woods. Those who are real sportsmen will not be disappointed. Those who remember there are other hunters afield that a day's sport is not alone to be measured by the size of the bag and are willing to respect the rights of farmers who because of unsportsmanlike conduct of hunters in preceding years have published warnings against trespass will derive real pleasure and benefit from a day's outing and have occasion to pleasantly remember it.

Those who pursue the opposite policy of disregarding the rights of all other persons and insolently treat owners of property upon which they may enter in defiance of notice and protest and who violate all the known rules of true sportsmanship may secure larger bags but the result will be little satisfaction resulting therefrom.

The experience of many farmers with this class of hunters has been so exasperating that gunners who go forth in some sections will have to travel a considerable distance before they find ground upon which they will be allowed to hunt. This may make it rather inconvenient for the hunters who have decent regard for the rules of small game shooting but the fault is not their own. That it is not ought to serve the purpose of inducing the real sportsmen to cooperate in the future. With the farmers in making it next to impossible for the pot-hunters to find a place to ply their nefarious trade.

There is game enough to afford every hunter an opportunity to have a day or two's sport but not unless these who make gunning a selfish business throughout the season are compelled by some means to pay respect to the law, the rights of land owners and the privileges of other hunters.

It is too much to hope perhaps that the latter class can be kept out of the fields but their depredations can be very much restricted if the farmers are vigilant in causing the arrest of trespassers and the genuine sports-loving hunters join heartily and determinedly in the campaign to curb the offense activities of the game raiders who pose under the false cloak of sportsmen.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest

IF I WERE STANDING BY MY BOY AFAR.

If I were standing by my boy afar,
To live and labor where strangers are,
I should hold him close till the time
To go, telling him things which he ought to know.
I should whisper counsel and caution
While hinting of dangers which might arise,
And tell him the things I have learned
From life.

Of the bitter pain and its cruel strife
And the sore temptations which men bustle about. Boy, do not forget
When your strength gives out and your hopes grow dim,
My father will help if you'll come to him.

If I were sending a boy away,
I should hold him close on the way,
And give him my trust through to the thick and thin.
I should tell him I counted on him to win.

To keep the word at whatever cost
To play the man though his fight be lost.
But I would add that I should whisper
If trouble comes let your father know.

Time to him, now is your time to
When you were little and I was through.
I can truly tell you in a distant land
You trust your father in your need.

Trust me, when you are to know there is nothing to live from,
I will tell you the things I have learned
The things of life that will help you
Never waver your pluck may be
Think it something to live from me.
Come to me first in your hour of need
Come though you know that my heart is true.

Boy, when the shadows of trouble fall
Come to your father first of all.

Chemical Warfare of the Future

Yeast areas of war gases in the upper spaces in which aeroplane pilots will find instant death; pockets of hydrogen which will burst into flame as an aeroplane enters them; attack defying barrages created by the chemist—a complete system of chemical offense and defense—is the picture painted by General Eugene Debeney, commander of the French First Army during the war, in describing the tactics that the general staffs of the leading nations of the world are now endeavoring to perfect.

"If hostilities had been drawn out for a few months longer," says General Debeney, "the war of explosives would have become a struggle between the manufacturers of gases."

"To create supplies of chemicals and gas is so simple," the French general points out, "that it is needed in a laboratory and a few dye factories. And then the path of scientific research is so broad. Colorless, odorless gases will be discovered, that can be condensed into infinitely small compass and solidified into tablets and pills. Already we know something of what the effects of these things will be. Scatter the contents of a few small boxes on the ground, and a dense smoky wind will spread steadily under a favorable wind over several square miles of countryside. A deadly fog, fatal to everything living within its area, will be created at any desired point merely by a shot from a cannon, or even from a cunningly placed machine gun. Broad belts of territory and entire villages will be poisoned and rendered unapproachable for weeks, at a time by other gases poured out here and there, a drop at a time."

"Where will one be able to go? There, the ground is so thick with planes overhead that it is impossible to get to another direction; at a third point a sudden shot from a gun has created an area of several acres covered with an atmosphere of strychnine; those bushes down there may breathe out an invisible wave of death."

"The poor infantryman will stagger along under an enormous mask, covered with a shapeless and gas-proof cloak, and protected, and the feet, with insulated boots. Chemistry makes no attempt to preserve manly beauty, and wears itself still less in regard to the feelings of the woman who may have the desire to recognize, under the disguise of this hideous divertissement costume, the beloved features of the heroic husband, son or sweetheart. Poor woman!"

"Against attacks by airships barrages will be launched—no longer the infantile barrage fire of explosives and shrapnel, but barrages of vast poisoned 'pockets' in which the unhappy pilot will meet with instant death; pockets of hydrogen, which will burst into flame as the air from hundreds of flexible cables, contact with which will smash propellers and destroy both pilot and machine. The air will be filled with ambushes and snares."

"On the terrestrial battlefield gas-tight tanks will be used in front of the infantry, fitted with apparatus whose removal will reveal the presence of hidden gas and enable the pilot to launch counter-gas, while self-propelled watering cars would deluge the poisoned ground with an antiseptic liquid."

General Debeney believes that chemical attack and defense will tend to offset each other equally skilled. The rival nations will find a way to export chemical gases. However, the French general concludes, the nation that fails to develop chemical research and chemical industries will be powerless against a highly skilled invader, even though the attacking forces might be inferior numerically."

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrown nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night. "Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic, manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.—Adv.

WHEN NERVES ARE UNSTRUNG

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Builds Up Vigor and Strength.

There are times when men and women cannot help losing strength. They try to do too much or they lose sleep or do not eat enough food; the stomachs become sluggish because poisons clog it. Faces grow pale and pasty looking. It is not long before nerves get unstrung.

The best way to start a change for the better is to take a course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It builds the blood. The weakness from a lack of red cells in the blood is overcome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan sends a fresh supply of red cells streaming through the blood. Good blood, pure and free from poisons, starts building up strength. Sleep is better, appetite keener, so that the body becomes properly nourished. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Advertisement.

12-FINGERED COMMUNITY

Anthropologists Perplexed at Curious Natural Freak in Texas.

When the people of Bandera, Tex., read in a newspaper a few days ago that John Cope, who recently passed the test for policeman in New York, had six fingers upon each hand and six toes upon each foot, and that each of his children has seven fingers upon each hand and seven toes upon each foot, they were not at all astonished. Every member of more than a dozen families of the hill section around Bandera is each equipped with six fingers upon each hand and six toes upon each foot.

This remarkable freak of nature began to be manifested in the Bandera section more than 20 years ago and it seems to have spread until it is no longer an uncommon thing with the people. The matter has been the subject of much discussion and investigation on the part of anthropologists. In all cases the extra fingers and toes are of the cat is now before the governor.

"Give Me a Chance To Think!"

All right. That chance will be during the week of November 7th to 12th. During that week take a little time and go over in your mind the many things your home town paper has done—is doing—will continue to do—for your home town. Think about it seriously. Think whether or not you have stood loyally by at all times when the community's champion has needed financial and moral support. Think whether or not you have always done your duty by the town's best friend. Think how much better your home town paper could do if each citizen were as loyal to it as it is to them. Think of some one far away who would enjoy the weekly visit from the old home town paper, then hand in a subscription for that far-away friend. If you are not now a subscriber, be one.

NEW BEADED AND SPANGLED ROBES

Styles Are Emphasized by the Paris Dressmakers in Autumn Collection.

TUNICS CUT HIGH IN NECK

Some Models Are Without, or Have Very Short Sleeves—Others Have the Straight-Around Decolletage

Paris is maintaining her reputation for simplicity in dress, despite all efforts to the contrary, writes a Paris fashion correspondent. There is something so attractively youthful about the simple dress that it is difficult to persuade the smart Parisienne to accept the more complicated and elaborate models.

However, the Paris dressmaker realizes that the continuance of these simple styles will be a detriment to her. It will be like killing the goose that laid the golden egg, so strenuous efforts will be made with the opening of the fall season to divert attention from the simple styles to more elaborate effects.

One of the first indications of the splendor of fall attire is the introduction of beaded and spangled robes. There is hardly a Paris dressmaker who is not emphasizing these styles in her autumn collection. The newest things of the kind are totally different from anything that has been heretofore shown. All kinds of new spangles and new emblems as the old-shaped beads are now called are being used and the most marvelous colors have been developed for this purpose.

Like Piece of Tapestry

When one recalls the old fashioned beaded tunic in color which seemed to represent the height of ambition from a standpoint of front-row chair-laste, one is amazed at the contrast presented in the 1932 spangled robe. The novelty now appears in dull soft shades of gray, wonderful browns, dull burnished reds and splashes.

Opalescent and iridescent effects are replaced by lustrous and lophophore, the latter named from the iridescent sheen of the crested pigeon. In consequence the new spangled robe looks like a wonderful piece of tapestry wrought with dull metal and burnished stones. The spangles as well as the beads are in the most wonderful shapes, thus a gown can be worked out in a variety of shapes and materials all in one lot.

The no longer seen a robe entirely spangled nor one done entirely in cup-shaped motifs. But there are squares, triangles, oblong pointed round faceted and tube shapes in varying sizes, sewn according to intricately traced designs on a background of deep tones, thus making the background as well as the embroidery in one color.

Shapes Forms for Every Taste

Many of these beautiful robes have been seen at the recent Paris dressmakers after their own designs and they come from the hands of the manufacturer almost a perfect dress with sleeves, décolletage, neckline, skirt fullness, length and shape dictated by the highest Paris fashion authorities.

There are shapes and forms to please every taste: tunics cut high in the neck in what is known as a decolletage without sleeves or with very short ones, if any. Other models having the straight-around décolletage with only tiny jeweled shoulder straps and bodice are cut off just below the curve of the bust.

Again the bodice takes the form of a bib at the front, the back and sides of the figure being left almost nude. In addition to the straight chemise form there are tunics in which the skirts are entirely crumpled, others in which the skirt is formed of a succession of ripples or ruffles. Other models are long straight panels open at the sides.

Styles of 1930 Leave Impression. The quantities of these robes in stock that have been exported are evidence that all the big stores in America are anticipating a large demand for them. One may expect, therefore, that the beaded tunic will be seen in town and hamlet as well as in the cities.

Although it appears impossible to overcome the liking for simple black silk frocks for daytime, the handsome set of evening dresses are being made from gorgeous materials in bright colors. The feeling of the 1890 period is very strong in model dresses for the evening.

There are any number of very full skirts most of which are very long, some almost touching the floor. In the skirts of more slender outline some part of the frock is made to trail for while, the skirt when slender is long, it is considered desirable to give the effect of even greater length by trailing points and panels.

Much silver lace and velvet ribbon are used as trimming on satin and silk dresses.

Lavin has just brought out some charming dance frocks in shades of the brightest shades such as shrimp pink and trims them most elaborately with metal lace and large applique motifs of natter blue velvet.

Harlequin Back to Earlier Days

The why which Lavin has applied the velvet trimming is most unusual. The bodice pointed far down in the front and ending at the normal waistline—a revival of a very old time style—is seen in every so many of these Lavin frocks.

Color makes charming evening gowns entirely of both of gold and silver, with the gold tulle and black velvet. These have the very long skirt and are of much alluring outline than the Lavin frocks referred to above.

The new evening capes are the love of the hour, and the interesting point is that there are very long frequently reaching the floor. They are made of the richest materials wonderfully combined.

Tunics have a great fancy for velvet, a broad black panel of gorgeous brocade to which are joined the front pieces made in a plain satin which she also or velvet embroidery at the bottom in a pattern exactly matching that of the brocade. She has lovely capes of this kind made in black and gold brocade joined to plain black satin on which the embroidery is done exactly the pattern of the brocade. It is a fascinating idea and one of which only a Parisian dressmaker could conceive.

Very gorgeous evening coats made of brocade for instance coral pink and silver are broken into panels by sections of silver lace on edge of the lace being allowed to float free. Often there are six or eight panels of this kind in the width of the cape. All of the silver lace reads one way, and the effect when worn is almost that of a half closed fan with the lace closing each of the panels.

Another wonderful panel effect in an evening wrap also a creation of Lavin is a black tulle wrap with a broad white panel in the center of the lining. This of course is revealed only when the cape is thrown open or is left full off the shoulders as many of them are.

The favorite way of hitching on the new cape is by the use of big colorful cord of mink or silk which encircles the base of a very narrow collar and is around the shoulder after the fashion of the Spanish bull fighter. In fact the craze for the cape is distinctly of Spanish origin. Likewise the shawl.

Many Uses of Salt

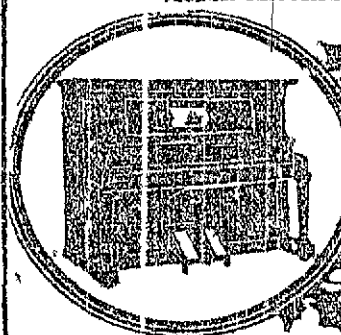

How many in society realize the almost innumerable uses for common salt? Salt and boiling water will thaw a frozen steak in a flash. Salt removes the stains from china. A solution of salt added to a quart of water will make it very effective for removing the hair from the face. To remove the hair from the face, mix salt with water, which will take it off in a few minutes.

Yale's Stone Bulldogs

Yale bulldogs, it is said, represent student life at Yale. The bulldog has been Old Yale's mascot for a long many years. One of the dogs with a white head and white spots on his body is the student. Another bulldog has a red head and white spots on his body, representing a student who is a member of the Yale football team. The bulldog is a symbol of strength and courage, and is a favorite mascot of many colleges and universities.

It's Brutal Side

Do you regard prize fighting as brutal?

KENYON COAL BILLS THE LONGEST STRIDE TOWARD SOCIALISM

In Control of Industry, Declares Congressman From West Virginia.

CREATE UNJUST BURDENS

Would Discriminate Unfairly and Add Tremendously to the Cost of Producing and Selling Coal, All of Which Would Fall Upon Consumer.

"Senator Kenyon's Coal Regulation bill, introduced in the Senate, if adopted into law, would be the longest stride into the realm of government control of industry that has been proposed in recent years," says Congressman Leonard S. Echols of Charleston, W. Va., in the current issue of the Coal Review.

"Under the provisions of Bill 2557, firms, corporations and partnerships engaged in the coal industry will be required to make reports—and some of these must be made monthly—to at least five different agencies; the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Geological Survey, the Department of Labor and the Bureau of Mines. Additional reports may be required by the Federal Trade Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission for the use and upon the request of the director of the Geological Survey.

"This would require the coal industry to employ hundreds if not thousands of additional expert accountants, bookkeepers, clerks, stenographers, etc., as well as a few hundred more lawyers. The Federal Trade Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission are given power to make such rules and regulations as they please for the premises."

"Bill 2557 permits a maximum profit of 50 cents and a minimum of 25 cents per ton to the producer, while it allows the coal broker a maximum of 40 cents and a minimum of 15 cents per ton. Such a margin of profit is wholly inequitable, even if the margin to the coal producer were fair.

"The coal broker has no investment of any consequence, while the producer has millions invested in the industry. The broker takes no chance of loss, except in the purchase of a type-writer and a desk, while the producer must invest in sufficient acreage of coal purchased or leased to justify the installation of plants at a tremendous cost. The unjust discrimination seems to have never been thought of by the draftsman of the bill. In fixing the items of cost the producer is not permitted to include income and excess profits taxes or salaries. Taxes and reasonable salaries are as much a necessity in the cost of producing coal as is the payment of the miners' wages.

"The enactment of these two bills into law would mean not only a tremendous additional cost in the production and sale of coal to the producer, but it would mean the employment of thousands of additional federal agents who know nothing about the business to continually annoy and harass those engaged in producing coal.

"It may be said that Bill 2557 will not be invoked except in case of emergency. Those interested in the advancement of socialism will readily create the emergency. No one would contend that an emergency greater than the present war is likely to occur within the next generation and yet that emergency did not justify government control of the railroads. The cost to the shippers and taxpayers of the country and the lack of efficiency in their operation have been entirely too great to repay for the expense in government control.

"We have not heard of the Senator from New York introducing any bill to regulate control and fix prices in the building industry, nor have we heard of the Senator from New Jersey introducing a bill to regulate and control the manufacture of silk, woolen and leather goods and fix the price thereof. Neither have we heard of the Senator from Iowa introducing a bill to regulate, control and fix the price of farm products. All these are certainly as essential to the public welfare and health of the people as is coal.

"If these gentlemen will get the railroads back to an efficient basis of operation from the wreck of government control so they can haul coal at a reasonable rate, they will do far more to relieve the country from distress than they can accomplish by further government regulation of industry."

Easy for Thin People to Put on Flesh and Gain Weight

"It's such an easy matter nowadays for thin people to get fat and put on good, healthy, solid flesh and become plump and graceful that one often wonders why there are still so many people who prefer to be 'skin and bone,' unattractive and unpleasant to look upon.

Physicians have long known that whoever could discover a remedy that would cause the food that one puts into the stomach to turn into good, rich, flesh-making blood, instead of going to waste, would also discover how to put healthy muscular flesh onto thin, under-nourished people, and this has now been accomplished.

If you are thin, under developed, nervous, weak, or lack vigor and vitality, you can secure any good put on flesh at moderate cost, by the treatment of EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES, a new combination of fresh growing elements that is guaranteed to put good, solid, lasting flesh on your body and to make you strong, healthy and vigorous or money back.

Physicians who have watched the results of the Evans' Triple Phosphates treatment are astonished at its rapid action—often in a month five to ten pounds of desirable weight is gained. Connellsville Drug Co., and C. Roy Hetzel have agreed to supply readers of this paper with Evans' Triple Phosphates and to guarantee it to do just what is claimed for it or money returned.—Advertisement.

Number of Mines Running Part Time Have Shown Increase

In Weekly Report No. 218 of the United States Geological Survey appeared a study of the number and capacity of bituminous mines which were idle during the week ended August 20. It was shown that of the mines reporting weekly to the Geological Survey, 36 per cent were closed down the entire week; as against only 3.4 per cent in the corresponding week of 1920. In the period from August 20 to October 1, the number of mines idle the entire week decreased noticeably, falling from 36 to 32.8 per cent of the mines reporting. In spite of the decrease the week of October 1 found 895 out of the 2,727 mines reporting, closed down the entire week, and therefore producing no coal and giving employment to virtually no men.

It is significant that the decrease in the number of mines closed was not in proportion to the increase in the production of coal, a fact which indicates that there is a certain lag in time between the recovery in demand and the reopening of mines which were definitely closed down during the period of depression.

In the same week 264 of the mines reporting worked full time; the great majority, 59.7 per cent of the total were working part time.

In the three weeks which have elapsed since October 1 there has been a marked increase in production, and no doubt a further diminution in the number of idle mines.

IDLE 12 MONTHS IS BACK ON JOB

Ohio Man Lost a Year on Account of Stomach Trouble—Is Now Well and Strong.

"Only a man who has to work for a living knows what it means to get back on the job after not hitting a lick of work for a whole year. I lost 12 months straight time on account of stomach trouble. One of the worst cases I guess a man ever had. Tangle not only made me a well man again but built me up 19 pounds in weight. I am writing all my friends in other cities to tell them of the wonderful news."

The above statement was made by George E. Lowe, well-known employee of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, living at 451 McGowan street, Akron, O.

The GIRL A HORSE AND A DOG

By FRANCIS LYNDIE

FROM a silver spoon and soft-mattress existence, Stamford Broughton suddenly is confronted with the alternative of looking for a job, or another kind of quest, try and locate a mysterious legacy left him by an eccentric grandfather.

He does not know the character of the property, but the grandfather's directions say that it is somewhere between the 105th and 110th degrees of longitude west from Greenwich, and the 35th and 40th degrees north latitude.

When he finds it he will be able to identify it by the presence of a girl with brown hair and blue eyes, a small mole on her left shoulder, a piebald horse and a dog with a split face—half black and half white. He is game and he starts to look for the combination. The troubles he has in locating it and the adventures and dangers through which he passes in securing possession of the property, also the romantic incidents in which the girl is a figure, make up this very fascinating narrative.

It is Mr. Lyndie's habit to tell stories like this, and there are readers in multitudes who would be sorry to have him depart from the custom.

FALSE WEDDING RING OPENS GAMBLING DOOR

American Girl, Refused Admission, Takes Cue From Young French Wife.

A young American girl about to enter the roulette room at the Casino at Deauville, France, was topped a few days ago by the uniformed Cordoniers of the door and politely but firmly refused admittance. "Too young," ruled the brass-buttoned official. Disappointed she stood by for a few moments and noted a young French woman, about her own age, being bowed into the gambling room by the same lackey who had refused her admittance. A plain little gold band, which the young French woman wore on the third finger of her left hand, when shown to the doorman, had proved the open sesame.

The young American girl called on a jeweler the next morning, and, accompanied by her usual dancing partner, again appeared at the door of the Casino that evening, and to the doorman, again objecting, said: "I'm married," displaying the wedding ring purchased that morning. She was admitted.

"We can't ask every woman to produce her marriage contract," said the lackey.

The jeweler was wondering what was causing the unprecedented demand for wedding rings lately out of proportion with the notices of coming marriages posted at the town hall.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL FIND

Five Giant Lizards of Prehistoric Days Uncovered in Texas.

While surveying a tract of land in the "red beds" near Big Springs, Tex., recently, W. F. Kelts of Sterling City, who also is a member of the legislature, discovered the fossilized remains of five giant lizards of prehistoric times. They are said to be the largest and most perfect specimens of these lizards ever found upon this continent. Each of the five lizards is described as measuring from 31 to 35 feet in length from head to tail. The measurements were taken from the perforated skeletons found in what was once the bed of a prehistoric lake.

The department of geology of the University of Texas has received communications from Mr. Kelts in regard to his discovery. It is planned to bring the prehistoric remains to the university's museums for preservation and exhibition, if quarters can be obtained for storing them.

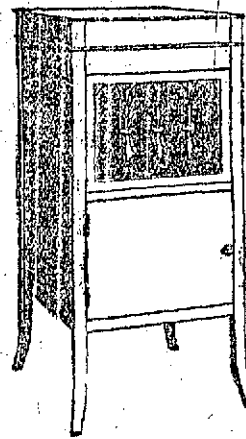

A great number of bones of other prehistoric animals are to be found scattered over about three square miles of this region.

Mother Burned Children to Death.

Mrs. Eva Knechtly burned her three children to death in a barn, she confessed to officials of Mefford, Wis., "to make all the money she could for her husband." The woman will be examined to ascertain her sanity.

Scottdale Defeats Cokers; Tornadoes Run Up Count on Uniontown's Crack Team

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 31.—Getting the first favorable break of the game when Connellsville was penalized on the eight-yard line for being offside, Scottdale high scored its initial touchdown on the Cokers in the first quarter here Saturday afternoon and before that period ended had again crossed the goal line. Another touchdown which came in the second quarter gave the Mill own team sufficient margin in which to win.

Scottdale had lost the ball on a fumble and Connellsville punted out of danger. Scottdale was held for three downs and on the fourth completed a forward pass. With the ball on the 15-yard line the Blue and White backs advanced it several yards. Then just as the Cokers were holding on the last down an end was offside and the ball was given to Scottdale on the three yard line with a first down. Byrne took the ball over and Murphy failed at a goal kick.

The Mill Towners scored again when Goldenson went around and on 35 yards and a touchdown. Murphy again failed to kick the goal.

The Cokers received the kick off and Whipple punted. The ball rolled almost to Scottdale's goal line. Whipple fumbled the ball on the first play when a tackle hit him hard and Whipple picked up the ball carrying it 12 yards over the goal line. O'Donnell failed on the goal kick.

Another 35-yard run this time by Byrne netted Scottdale the third touchdown. The Cokers made some miserable attempts to stop the runner but none tackled in a manner that would bring him down. Murphy kicked the goal. The score was 13-0 and in that manner the half ended.

Byrne was the outstanding star of the Scottdale team. He was the only man to gain ground with consistency. The Cokers ends were taking out the interference on the end runs but Byrne had a trick of cutting in behind his mates and dodging through the Coker backfield gaps. When he should have been there for a loss.

Scottdale seldom gushed through the line and on the other hand seldom allowed a local man through its line defense. Several times tick line bucks worked however.

The Mill Towners fumbled more than Connellsville and generally lost the ball through such mishaps. The team had some great support from the student body. In fact but for that has ever been noted before. The team outplayed the Cokers especially in the backfield.

Whipple was the ground runner for the Cokers. Lately the Scottdale backs feared him more than any other as he was closely watched. Several times especially in the last half the full back carried the ball 10 to 12 yards on a single run. His game was improved wonderfully and he is the best offensive man on the Connellsville team.

Scottdale never threatened the Coker goal in the last half. In fact the home team played a defensive game mostly. Especially in the last quarter this was apparent. Murphy always playing on the first down.

Connellsville scored when resort was made to the open game. A forward McCormick to Pierce netted 15 yards. Another play of the same kind but called Solis was to receive the ball but slipped and fell. As Jones was playing right and ran dangerously across the Scottdale backfield to make interference for Solis he leaped into the air and grasped the pigskin. Murphy nabbed him near the goal line and the pair slid out of bounds on the two yard line. Two line plunges netted the score. Solis carrying the ball over Whipple kicked the goal.

More exchanges of the ball took place in the remaining part of the quarter and the game ended with the ball in midfield in Connellsville's possession.

Connellsville squared up with Uniontown Saturday for all the defeats in sport events ever suffered by a Coker aggregation at the hands of the countyseaters. The Tornado football eleven whitewashed the Uniontown Independents literally tearing the victory into shreds. The final score was 37-0.

The Tornadoes received the kick-off and it took exactly four plays to score a touchdown. When the half ended the score was 62-0. Every time the locals got the ball it meant a touchdown. Uniontown soldiers gained completing one forward pass and making one good run. The Tornado line and ends were impregnable and when the visiting outfit left the field it was a sorry looking lot.

The team was the best Uniontown had to offer. The Tornadoes expected some opposition but it might as well have been playing a township high school outfit.

The locals rubbed it in after beating Uniontown by giving a lad named Jitney Balda a place in the lineup. He took Penello's place at end and then was called back to carry the ball. He took it to 30 yards and a touchdown. The boy is about 16 years old.

DOVER CHANNEL SWIMMERS FAIL

Thousands of Unsuccessful Attempts Have Been Made.

WEBB FIRST TO TURN TRICK

Englishman Crossed From Dover to Calais in 1875, Covering the Distance in 21 Hours, 35 Minutes—In 1911 Burgess, Swam From South Foreland, Dover, to Le Chateau in 22 Hours and 35 Minutes—Swimmers Fail.

The failure of Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass. to swim the English channel on his fifth attempt recalls the efforts of swimmers from all corners of the world to accomplish the feat.

Only twice in history has the rest less stretch of water given way to the effort of aquatic stars. In 1875 Capt. Matthew Webb, an Englishman, crossed from Dover to Calais in 21 hours, 35 minutes. He was rewarded by a light wind and a comparatively calm sea, actually swimming about thirty miles.

Distance Is Twenty Miles.

The distance across the channel at the narrowest point, Dover to Cape Gris Nez, a French headland in the Pas de Calais, is about 20 miles, but swimmers are compelled to zig-zag in combating the waves and tides.

The second successful attempt to cross the channel was made on September 6, 1911, by William T. Burgess, an Englishman, by birth, but a naturalized Frenchman. Fifteen times previously he had attempted to make the perilous swim. On the sixth time he swam from South Foreland, Dover to Le Chateau, a little village, two miles east of Cape Gris Nez in 22 hours 35 minutes. He covered about 30 miles.

Burgess' feat was considered even more wonderful than that of Captain Webb in that he met with the most adverse conditions. In midchannel he was struck severely by J. H. fish and became ill and was nearly abandoned by the swim. When but a short distance off the French coast he met the (bbing tide and battled for three hours before reaching shore.

Two other men said to have swum the feat could not prove their claims. Last David Dalton of New York declared he swam the channel in August, 1890, covering 90 miles in 23 hours 30 minutes. He claimed to have swam the entire distance on his back. Sam Mahony of Keweenaw, Miss. asserted that he swam from Sangate Island to South Foreland in September, 1905, but this was not proved.

Makes 21 Attempts.

Jabe Wolfe the veteran English swimmer has made 21 unsuccessful attempts to cross and is planning to other. In September, 1908, he arrived within sight of the Calais pier, but he came ill and was taken from the water. He had been in the water 24 hours.

In August of 1908 James Moorme, the Scottish swimming champion, nearly lost his life in the swim. Moorme, a Scotchman of England tried seven times to cross. In 1903 he arrived within a mile of Dover after swimming 22 hours 21 minutes, giving up because of exhaustion. Annette Kolleroman, a native-born Australian, called the world's greatest woman swimmer made several attempts without success. Many others of lesser note have tried and failed.

RESCUES CHICKENS

Officer Took Them When They Were About to Be Swallowed.

A species of hen constrictor which was being exhibited at a carnival at Portland Ore., went hungry one day and a large crowd of apes was counted themselves somewhat out of pocket when Humane Officer Churchill broke up a hypnotic session and rescued two chickens—the makes potential dinner.

The barker had announced that the reptile—which is 30 feet long—was about to partake of its dinner by hypnotizing and later consuming two live chickens. The crowd flocked in and paid their money.

The hypnotic eye was just beginning to have its effect when Churchill got wind of the affair and boldly entered the enclosure leaped into the arena, seized the two chickens and left with one under each arm, issuing orders that the concession would be seized if any more live chickens were offered the reptile.

Another murder was laid to the door of W. T. Aven of Waco Tex. when an analysis of the viscera of his five-month-old daughter showed that the infant died of poisoning. Aven was charged with the baby's death.

Aven is alleged to have committed two other murders in a plot to get rid of his wife and the husband of his niece so that he might marry her.

The preliminary trial of Aven has not yet been held. He was taken from the local jail to some unknown place to forestall any attempt of citizens to take the law into their own hands.

SMALLPOX INCREASES WHERE LAWS ARE LAX

United States Health Service Gives Results of Investigations Just Made.

The increase in the prevalence of smallpox in the United States during recent years has been marked and definite, according to a statistical investigation just completed by John N. Moore and Dr. James P. Laidie of the United States public health service.

There has been an extraordinary increase of smallpox on the Pacific coast, the results of the investigation show. In the last three years the cases per thousand inhabitants have increased from 0.16 to 2.33. Figures for the Central and Southern states, in spite of fluctuations show that there has been a decided upward tendency in the prevalence of smallpox, although the central states maintain a level almost twice as high as that of the southern states. The eastern states have had a remarkably constant rate of smallpox during the period from 1915 to 1920 and there has been little deviation from an average rate of 0.04 cases per thousand. Twenty representative states including the District of Columbia were considered in the investigation. Of these states New York with 0.026 cases per thousand of population and the lowest rate while Kansas with 2.00 cases had the highest.

In addition to determining from the official figures the prevalence of smallpox, the investigation showed that the increase of the disease varied with the laxity in the enforcement of vaccination laws.

"It is evident that smallpox in this country is dependent on the popular vote," the report says. "In general, the people obey laws which they have made. If popular sentiment in a state is behind a strong centralized compulsory vaccination act smallpox is kept light in that state. If local authorities are lax on discretionary powers in the matter of vaccination enforcement the rate tends to rise even in the most favored sections of the country, whereas in the absence of compulsory features in the law or where there is no law at all, smallpox reaches a high rate."

CHAPTER I.

Cousin Percy's Little Joke.

I suppose every one has had the experience of waking in the middle of the night to find everything perfectly still and quiet and normal, and yet with the impression persisting that there had been a tremendous crash of some sort just before the waking. These were all enough to realize it.

But, first, however, to give some idea of the conditions precedent, as a lawyer would say. My father—good, easy-going, comfortable—Dad—never owned what Grandfather Dudley, pursuing his thin lips and snapping the words out, called "the money race." As an architect high in his profession and with some artistic feeling for the beautiful in buildings, he earned a liberal income—and spent it; or so much of it that there was barely enough left after his death to provide for my mother and sister, and to keep me going, as you might say, in an exceedingly modest manner. Without work, I mean. I may as well confess, at once, that I had never acquired the work habit. I was always "going for" but it was so fatiguing to keep on postponing the chilling plunge, I suppose I had been ready on at least half a dozen occasions to take a dive into some pool with a salary attachment; but always some good friend would bob up to say, "Oh, come on, Stannie, old man; we're lacking just one more to make up the bunch. Don't be a clown. This is enough to settle down when you have to, and then it would be all off."

Besides, you see, there was always Grandfather Jasper in the background. He had money—plenty of it; so we were all, and it had been a family understanding for years that he intended splitting the bulk of it, fifty-fifty, between my cousin Percy and me. Before we go any further, let me say that I don't mean Cousin Percy was a joke. He was a very different kind of thing, that I am not, and never wished to be; smooth, neat, well-groomed, a "gentle" in college and a "perfect" in the office, with the girls, ambitious as the very devil, and measuring his friends by the amount of "pull" they might be able to exert in his behalf. There was a certain amount of "pull" in the crowd of small-brained little heads to his patient, leather pumps.

"You're a little thing, Stannie," he would say, in his carefully polished diplomatic manner—he had a billet in the Department of State at Washington, and was in training for the legation service abroad—"you are a perfect fright. Three whole years out of college, and you haven't done a single thing useful. When are you going to begin? And, incidentally, how long are you going to keep Lisette waiting?"

Oh, Lord!—right there was another knot in the tangle—Lisette. We had agreed to agree—Lisette and I—some months or so in advance of Grandfather Jasper's death, and we were both perfectly well assured, and had assumed each other's consent, that my share of Grandfather's estate wasn't more than just big enough to marry on. You see, it was this way: Lisette was one of a family of four girls in a mighty expensive household, and there wasn't anything to lean on that side of the fence. "Though, of course, we never discussed it fruitfully in so many words, we were waiting for that fifty-fifty split at the will which Grandfather declared had already been drawn up, signed, sealed, witnessed and put away in cold storage; otherwise in the safe-keeping of Grandfather Jasper's family lawyer.

All of which may serve to bring us back to that nightmare effect registered at the start. When the Dudley will was taken out of the ledger and read to the assembled members of the family, there was a great deal of cheering and shouting. Jasper hadn't been too generous, as far as the money went, but his modest manner of living had been, perhaps, as much a matter of necessity as of choice. Had investigations of which the family had never heard so much as a whisper—had his fortune flown down to something less than half a million? All told, that was what Number One and Number Two were left with. Number Three, Grandfather Jasper had left me his love and his wishes, and had willed the money and property—all of it, mind you—to Cousin Percy, giving as his reason that he thought Percy would make better use of it.

Of course, I had every body's sympathy and condolence—even Percy's, for that matter. My mother wept; and, as I recall it, Lisette managed to contain her tears so well that she had had happened, or rather what had happened, she had failed to happen.

"Whatever will you do?" she faltered. "I suppose you will really have to go to work now, won't you, Stannie?"

"I wish the thought," I told her; then I gave the good reasons why there was no hope for us in that direction. "A fat chance. I'd have any real money. I can navigate a yacht, I can drive a motor, ride a bicycle, play a fair hand at cards and the other great American game. I think those are the sum total of my shining accomplishments. You mean to turn the ring?"

"I'm afraid," she said, looking at me with a certain sympathy. "You can wear those other things, you know."

"Yes, I suppose I could do that," she agreed; and the best of the other hand right there and then!

It was less than a week after this little fade-out scene with Lisette that Percy's letter came. This is what it said:

"Dear Stannie:

"I know just about how you felt last week when you heard Grandfather Jasper's will read, and it isn't going to make you feel any better now when I tell you that I know of it. I've known more than a year ago. When the will was drawn, grandfather showed it to me, and gave me a sealed envelope, which I was to open after his death. That envelope, as I knew at the time, contained, among other things, a codicil to the will. By its provisions you are to receive a legacy under certain conditions which were to be revealed to you at such time as I might, think best."

"Your portion of Grandfather Jasper's property was worth, at its latest valuation, something like $400,000. It lies in a perfectly safe repository, situated between the 105th and 110th degrees of longitude west from Greenwich, and the 35th and 40th degrees north latitude. When you find it, you will be able to identify it by the presence of a girl with brown hair and blue eyes and small mole on her left shoulder, a placid horse which the girl rides, and a dog with a split face—half black and half white. You will be more than likely to find the three together; and if you make the acquaintance of the girl, you'll be on the trail of your legacy."

"So there you are, Stannie, old boy; there's your fortune. All you've got to do is to go to work and find it. Perhaps by that time you will have acquired the working habit—which is what Grandfather Jasper hoped might prove to be the case."

"Wishing you great joy in your search, I am,

"Your affectionate cousin,

"PERCY."

Naturally, I had a quiet little laugh over this secret of Percy's, taking it for a joke, a poor joke, and in my haste, I thought, in that mood, I handed the letter to Lisette, for her to read. She didn't laugh, but she did look a bit scornful and put about, if you know what I mean.

"I don't suppose the blue-eyed girl would appeal to you," she said, "though the horse and the dog might. When do you start?"

"We discovered that Meridian 105 west of Greenwich split the state of Colorado just beyond Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, and the hunting-ground plotted out for me took in three-fourths of the remainder of the state, a slice of Utah, a good bit bigger slice of New Mexico, with a bite out of the northeastern corner of Arizona, just for good measure."

"He for the wild and woolly!" I brayed. "Don't you see me riding in a nice, hairy pair of 'slings' and riding hell-bone-for-leather? I believe that's the phrase—over the snow-capped peaks or the boundless prairies, as the case may be? But just imagine Percy the immaculate pulling a bonehead joke like this!"

"You are taking it for a joke?" she questioned.

"Sure I am; and it's a rather rotten one at that, I should say—considering the source."

"Then you won't go to look for the blue-eyed girl with nut-brown hair and the cunning little mole? Think of what you may be missing!"

For just one crazy minute I had a hunch, or a premonition, or whatever you like to call it, that the letter might not be a joke. Grandfather Jasper had always been a bit eccentric, and his niece's petticoats and a rich old man's incontestable right. What if he had actually done this thing to me—a thing scarcely less devastating than cutting me off without a penny? On the spur of the moment I said:

"If I should go, would you wait for me, Lisette?"

She took her time about answering—just long enough to get it off. "I think perhaps I'd better not change the ring back, Stannie," she said, sort of wistfully. "If there is any money and you should happen to find it, you would probably find it all away before you could get back to Boston. Besides, there is the blue-eyed girl; if she should bring you a fortune, you'd have to marry her, wouldn't you? You are big and strong, and—well—er—quite in a good many ways, Stannie, and much too good-looking for your own good; but when you marry—if you do marry—you'd better be sure that the girl has money enough to buy her own hats. I haven't enough, as you know."

"I know only too well that the love-lane-cottage idea has never appealed to you," I said, with the respectful step put off and way out in deference to the sentimental decencies.

"Not in the least, Stannie, dear; not in the least!"

This appeared to be the end of our rather lukewarm love-dream, and to be really honest and aboveboard about it, I am obliged to confess that it didn't break as many bones for me as I supposed it should have. Anyway, a half-hour or so after I had said good-bye to Lisette I met Jack Downing; and when he asked me if I didn't want to go with him and a bunch of the fellows for a little spin down the coast of Maine in his motor cruiser, I fell for the invitation so suddenly that he hadn't a ghost of a chance to back out, if he had wanted to.

So, a few hours beyond that touching little scene at "The Rocker," you may figure me, if you please, spinning the wheel of one of the motor-boats on the North shore, with a fresh nor'easter blowing and the sea getting up to give me the time of my young life to hold the Gulliver to her course, nor nor'easter, half a point east, as we lifted the sheals on our port bow.

In such jolly good company as we had aboard the motor-boat Gulliver, three full days' shipboard before a thought of Percy or his job ever entered my head again; and it's a ten-to-one shot that I wouldn't have thought of him, or of finding the remainder of the cruise if we hadn't been obliged to tie up at Rockland for motor repairs. This, as I recall it, was on the fourth day, and it was a dog that made me remember; a mongrel cur that followed the motor-boats down to the wharf; a most disagreeable looking mongrel, at that, but—by Jove! he had the single marking! Half of his face, measuring from a line drawn straight down over the tip of his nose, was black; and the other half was a dinky, dirty white.

So then I did a little rapid figuring on train schedules. If Percy had left Washington as I knew he was planning to, my diplomatic cousin should have been, at that figuring moment, just about due in San Francisco. That being the case, or the likelihood, I toddled up to the telegraph office and sent a message, addressing it in care of the captain of whatever might be the next steamer due to sail for ports in China. All I said was: "Your letter was as funny as an hour in a devil's chair. Bon-voysage to you!"

"Night, don't you still" led to the Rockland wharf; and just as we were getting up from dinner in the yacht's saloon, here came a boy with a telegram. The wife was from Percy, and it said:

"Don't be a complete fool. It was no joke at all. Ask my lawyer."

Even then, I didn't go off at half-cock, though I have often been called an impulsive jackass. The thing was still too ridiculous to bite very hard. But further along in the evening when I got to thinking it over and were especially when it was shoved in upon me that I really did owe it to Lisette not to turn down even the tenth part of a chance to provide for her with the means of buying her future hats, the die was cast, as the play-writers say. I made some sort of a feeble excuse to Jack Downing and the other fellows, caught a night train for Boston, slipped off at the home station long enough to pack a couple of grips and to tell my mother and sister good-bye, and the thing was—oh, no! not done—nothing like that. It was only just begun.

CHAPTER II.

A Needle in a Haystack.

Since my happy hunting ground began in the middle of Colorado, I took a ticket to Denver by way of Chicago and Omaha. As I recall it now, it was after the train had passed North Platte that I first became sensibly conscious, as you might say, of the fact that the aim in the opposite section of the sleeping-car had a little Pullman table set up in front of him, and was studying maps—and blue-prints. He was a rather efficient-looking fellow of maybe thirty-two or three, with dark hair and eyes, and what Lisette would have called a determined nose, and he sported a beard and mustache, nut-brown as to color, and neatly trimmed.

Further along we met in the smoking room, at a time when the stuffy little den had no other occupants. Mr. Opposite Section's only cigar "rained out" to have a broken wrapper, so I naturally tendered my own pocket-case. That served to break the ice, and we talked, drifting along from one commonplace to another until finally Brown-beard said:

"You don't by any chance happen to be a mining engineer, do you?"

"Far be it from me," I laughed; "nothing so useful as that."

"I didn't know," he hastened to say, half apologetically. "I saw you studying maps as we came along."

Now, ordinarily I'm apt to talk a lot too much about my own affairs—I'll admit it; but this was one time when I had a sort of hunch not to. So I merely said:

"I saw you doing the same thing."

"Saw you did?" he admitted cheerfully. "Then he told me his name—when I got to Dillon, or Butte, or something like that—and said he was a mining engineer, which was the reason why he had asked me! I wasn't one."

"I saw you doing the same thing," he said, after he had given me some sort of an idea of what a mining engineer's job is like. "In my own experience, for example, the only sure shot I have ever had—possibly ever will have—got away from me."

It was up to me to bite, and, of course, I did it.

"Two men died," he replied blandly.

"That sounded rather interesting, so I gave him another pinch."

"Tell me about it; if it won't bore you."

He grinned good-naturedly—and accepted another cigar.

"I can't be the one to be bored. It was this way: A little over a year ago I was on my way to Chicago with a report that I had been making on some properties in the Cripple Creek district. In the Denver-Omaha Pullman I fell in with a nice old gentleman who had been buying himself a gold brick in the shape of a flooded mine. The mine had at one time been a 'producer,' though not by any means what you'd call a 'boom-bum.' After a rather extended dividend-paying period—I don't know just how long, though it was some years—the luck changed, as sometimes happens. In shuffling and drifting the operators had uncovered another vein which was exceedingly rich. Don't let me talk your arm off."

"Go ahead," said I. "My arms are insured."

HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK
Nation-Wide Movement Set for November 7th to 12th.

Every Four Corners has its Home Town week nowadays, but all the boys and girls who have wandered from the Township Center cannot get back to enjoy the loved surroundings. But all can subscribe to the old home town paper and thus keep the but-very-little with the little spot they once called home.

What joy to run over the school promotions and find that the tots of a few years ago are moving higher and higher in scholastic circles and eventually blossom forth as the "sweet girl graduates," or the clean young boys discarding knickerbockers.

Just watch that hardened old city editor sniff up his home paper—it is the first thing he picks up out of his bunch of mail—and what can be found there to interest him? Angus McGugan's horse died yesterday; Peter McGregor will run for the county clerkship; Horace Jell hopes to win the secretaryship of the Hilltown Agricultural Society; Lydia Minger has opened a millinery store; Mrs. Brown lost her hand basket in the but-very-little; and so on and so on.

Yet though he smiles at the old-time styles and expressions he enjoys it all over and over again, for it takes his mind back home where his wonderful boyhood days—happy days—were spent.

HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK.

People of the United States will be afforded an opportunity during the week of November 7th to 12th to express in concrete form their gratitude to those men and women, who through sunshine and rain, prosperity and adversity, persistently and consistently sing the song of the home town. The two long since passed "home town" papers, whether daily or weekly, are the spirit of the "making it for greater" spirit of the patrons and well wishers. Costs of producing newspapers today have not decreased in anything like the proportion experienced in other lines and figures quoted recently by the country have given the public a glimpse into the expense incidental to conducting the home paper.

To the newspaper men and women of each community has fallen the task of presenting the current events of a fast-moving world in accordance with the modern ideas, more or less extravagant, and keeping a smiling countenance and a courageous heart when others are prone to talk "hard times." Their loyalty to the state and their community has undergone its severest test but they met it with enthusiasm and only a little fluctuation in regard to show how much worse conditions might have been before the turn in the road was reached, had they pursued a different course.

Advertisers had to keep advertising whether they could pay promptly or not and business had to be kept going for the general good. The publishers and editors did their part and the second week in November is proclaimed a time when the press is required by this paper to express its terms of support that will insure the future of the small town paper, the backbone of every community that has the semblance of pride in itself and its neighbors.—St. Louis City Argus-Leader.

A Necessary Luxury.
The town newspaper is both a luxury and one of the family necessities.

S. CONNELLSVILLE COUNCIL WILL HOLD SESSION THURSDAY

Numerous Problems to Be Considered, Including Salaries for Firemen.

FOOTBALL ELEVEN TIES

Superior Team From Dunbar Held Scoreless in Grilling Game Saturday Afternoon; Gibson Literary Society Names New Corps of Officers

SOUTH CONNELLSVILLE, Oct. 31.—Town council will meet on Thursday evening to discuss the borough problems that were outlined by Thomas C. Phillips at the citizens' meeting last Monday evening. It will also take action on the question brought up by the council at the last meeting as to whether the policemen of South Conneltsville shall receive regular salaries or not. The police force is made up of the 12 volunteer firemen, who receive a donation of $150 for their treasury every year but no paid salary from the council. Arrests by policemen if not on salary would be illegal, it is claimed, so the matter will be voted on whether the policemen shall receive a dollar a year or not. That is the salary asked for.

Strong Dunbar Team Scoreless. The South Conneltsville football team played a scoreless tie game with the Dunbar eleven Saturday afternoon at Dunbar. The game was a battle from the start to the finish, with neither side able to show enough punch to put the planks over the goal. The South Conneltsville boys went up against a team that had practically nothing.

Literary Society Officers. The following officers were elected Friday by the Literary society of the Gibson high school: President, Thomas Coughour; vice president, Kimmel Miller; secretary, Lavarie Miller; editor, Kimmel Miller; chorister, George Robert Solson; pianist, Bessie Lee; marshal, W. S. Trevitt; trustee, Elizabeth Baker. The following students were on the program committee and worked out the program for next Friday, Mary Kathryn McKelrick, Elizabeth Baker, Asenath Umbel and Earle Beatty.

Improvements About Completed. S. B. Miller has just about completed repairs on his residence on Pittsburg street. He remodeled half of his house of the first floor, built a big porch almost all the way around, and an addition on to his garage.

Personals. William Beck and James Edenbo are laying a concrete walk in front of their residences in Pittsburg street. Andrew Cambolia is building a stone wall around one side of his home in Pittsburg street.

"LAVENDER AND OLD LACE"—In this picture Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday here are some of the things you will see.

The faith of Mary Ansel that endured through the years.

How Jane Hathaway got what she wanted after.

An interesting new angle on the Marriage Situation, as expressed by Jimmy Ball.

How Charles Winfield passed out of the life of Mary Ansel and Carl Winfield came into it.

The blossoming of the romance between Ruth Thorne and Carl Winfield.

How Carl Winfield brought both sorrow and joy to Mary Ansel.

Long, lean, lanky Joe, the village hack-driver, and his five-year courtship of Hesper.

A charming legend of Old Japan perfectly outlined and splendidly acted, inserted in a singularly interesting sequence.

The love of a humble baker of vases for a nobleman's daughter.

Triplets—and how Hesper handled them.

The quaint, homely atmosphere of a real New England home.

A glimpse of country lanes shady nooks, lavender and old lace, and many delicious scenes from the oldest families of New England.

What happened when a woman's faith that had been kept through the years was broken at last.

The reason for Mary Ansel's solitary life, and why it was that the villagers thought her strange.

HEART OF MARYLAND
STARRING CATHERINE COLVERT

the most striking characterization in the play is that of Mabel Ballin, who as "The Girl" paints with sure strokes as joyfully a portrait as the screen has ever known.

Mention must also be made of Wynham Standing, who makes "The Mill-Owner" a vividly compelling figure. Mr. Standing, a real veteran of the screen.

For George Bancroft, a recent "find" of Hugo Ballin's, who makes his first appearance before the camera in this production, too much cannot be said. His portrayal of "The Iron-Worker" is splendidly real.

All the minor roles are more than adequately handled. Little George, ette, Bancroft, a charming and unspoiled child, is entrusted with a most important part, to which her talents do full justice.

A distinct surprise awaits those who see this excellent picture, for it has been made without a single subtitle from first to last. But so clearly and logically does the story unfold that the realization of this fact will not come to the beholder until the picture is well under way. And then he or she will find that the subtitle is neither needed or missed.

THE ORCHARD.

"THE ORCHARD," which opened today for a three-day performance, is a drama of English society life, replete with elaborate settings and spectacular effects. In this picture Miss Agnes portrays the role of a quiet London actress, Fanny Trillick, who is married, at one of the numerous weddings of the season, to Anthony Bond, a wealthy Canadian and London society lion. A barrier arises between the two, however, when the husband learns that before the wedding, the girl had lightly made, there, mark that it he killed her she would, she him for breach of promise. He believes, she is in earnest, grudgingly goes through with the "deceitful" wedding ceremony, and when they are alone accuses her of marrying him without love and tells her she will be his wife in name only. Many dire complications result from such a situation and the story becomes a love tragedy, but at the finish, the girl awakens in her true self and it is revealed that she really loves the man she has married. Miss Agnes' role is one which fairly thrills with genuine, life-like drama and ideas as the heartstrings of an audience are melted by that talented screen artist. She will be recalled as "The O. Henry girl," which title was associated with her name after she had played in a series of pictures from the short stories of that famous author. She has since played in numerous big special productions and her work has proven what she really is—one of the genuine artists of the shadow screen. Others in the cast are: Jeanie, Patrick, Theodore Roberts, Helen Dunbar, Betty Francisco and Milton Sills.

Vanity! Vanity!

And who wouldn't be vain when a body can have so dainty a vanity case to primp in.

They come, equipped for both powder and rouge in sterling silver, enamel and gold with enamel top.

Perhaps the silver are the prettiest—if one hasn't too strong a penchant for cloisonné!

They're priced 75c to $4—and at that are merely a sample of the distinguished little trinkets included in the Fall jewelry but lately arrived.

Children's New Gloves

Here is listed the cream of a recent shipment of them.

Real chambray mittens in grey and brown are $1.

Real chambray 2 clasp gloves in grey with a fancy stitched back are 80c.

Children's pure Australian wool knit gloves in brown and navy are 50c.

Infant's mittens, knitted in brown and navy, are 30c.

Children's Umbrellas

Have you ever noticed—say on a rainy Sunday morning—the number of little kiddies hereabouts who have to content themselves with umbrellas almost as big again as they are themselves? You'd almost expect—if a good guest of wind came along—to see them parachuting over the Yough!

That sort of thing isn't necessary—the kiddies should have umbrellas for themselves. An umbrella sized and fashioned small enough so that little hands can comfortably manipulate it.

Kiddies will find such umbrellas here—every bit as staunch and good-looking as those intended for their elders—priced as low as $2.50.

Lace

THAT filmy, dreamier trimming is distinctly coming into its own again with the renewal of the vogue for things Spanish.

It is used almost everywhere—on gowns and dresses, on dainty underthings, and these are the favorite laces.

Pillet which comes in various widths and is lace monarch of them all, is priced per yard 50c to $2.50.

Liberty and French Val in widths 1-2 inch to 1-4 inch is priced 10c to 22c yard.

An Underpricing of Fur Trimmed Coats at $179.50

YOU'LL find this an occasion more than to your liking! In the first place up to the present moment these coats have borne the price of $195 to $250. In the second, the event brings forth only the most tempting, most highly desirable models in the Wright-Metzler stock.

It exploits the new materials—Gerona, Panvelaine, Orlando and Marvella—warm, plush-like fabrics of regalmine. And it features the new colors—Zanzibar, Maribon, Malay, Navy, Black and the lovely Sorrento.

The trimmings are those softer, richer furs, wolf, squirrel and beaver. The styles may either hug the figure or fall away in wrappy effects.

Women themselves—not Paris alone—have determined that this shall be a banner year for coats. And the beauty of these garments—and this new alluring price—speak volumes for the wisdom of their decision!

Other unusual values occur at $38 and $48. Still other prices range $19.75 up to $165.

—Woman's Apparel Section, Second Floor.

Do you crave a fur coat?—At this price you shall have one!

MONDAY and Tuesday fur coats—and our display is something to be proud of!—will be treated to the following reductions:

Becoming coats in French Coney, sacrificing not a bit of beauty and comfort to their low price, will appear marked—$49.75 values $39.75; $59.75 values $49.75; $79.50 values $69.50.

And entering the regions where each new fair-furred garment seems more bonny than the last, we find that coats in Bay Seal, Australian Seal, Hudson Seal, Squirrel and Marmot—currently priced $125 to $395—are specially priced $98.50 to $775.

Which means you save a downright $26.50 to $120 on every coat—without any attempt being made to measure what a joy it is to own one.

These prices prevail Monday and Tuesday and you should strike while the iron is hot.

When a Blanket sells for 98c it's time for action

THESE are Nashua blankets and were originally intended for exportation. But the present lull in foreign trade forced the maker to seek a domestic market. Result is we have 125 of them—100 grey and 25 white—size 64x74 and almost unbelievably priced 98c. They are not what you'd call a dressy blanket but they are good weight and they keep one warm—and after all even the most expensive blanket can do little more than that.

Some other blanket additions are—Bathrobe blankets, conventionally designed in blue, brown and grey, measuring 75x90. They are full enough to make a bathrobe without seams and the frog and waist cord are included. Price $6. If you wish, we can have them made up for you. Price $2.50 and cost of pattern.

Finally—smacking of open camp fires and Western nights—these Indian blankets in marvelously colorful Navajo designs—tan, grey, black and red. Size 68x80. Price $8. Here's something well worth having!

The menu will include sandwiches, all kinds of cake, doughnuts and the pies for which our bakeshop is becoming noted.

You will be free to stay as long as you please, to chat as long as you wish, in surroundings as restful as we can make them.

All women hereabouts are invited to avail themselves of this innovation.

Another bedroom necessity comes in the form of a matting covered box, size 33 to 48 inches and very trim looking. These can serve as little linen closets and are priced $6 to $15.
